DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention.

Claim 4 calls for "requesting from said network varying selected minimum data rates during the transfer of data between first and second parties, said varying minimum data rates being selected as a function of the actual data flow between said parties and in such a way as to achieve a desired overall data flow rate". The specification, while providing general teaching of creating a higher bandwidth connection and call setup message indicating how much resources need be reserved for the call, does not provide specific teaching of requesting varying selected minimum data rates.

Claim 5 calls for "causing said network to provision successive virtual circuit connections to transfer corresponding successive portions of said data, each connection having a respective requested minimum data rate". The specification fails to provide teachings for the limitation. The teaching in the specification is more general in that the high-bandwidth connection and the low-bandwidth connection are established and/or dropped as a result of bandwidth requirement changes. There is no specific teaching of provisioning successive virtual circuit connections to transfer corresponding successive portions of data.

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 1-3 are allowed.
4. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Prior art fails to teach or fairly suggest provisioning a first virtual circuit connection over packet network for transfer of data between a first user and a second user, the first virtual circuit connection having a first associated sustained data rate, and in response to a determination that the transferring is not achieving a predetermined minimum desired level of data flow, causing the packet network to provision a second virtual circuit connection for the transfer of data, the second virtual circuit connection having a second associated sustained data rate that is greater than the first sustained data rate.

Conclusion

5. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. The Davison et al. patent, the Smith et al. patent, the Chevalier et al. patent, the Lewis et al. patent, and the Enoki et al. patent, are cited for further references.
